It's been a tough couple of years

It's been a tough couple of years

Networks are great!

- For learning about industry trends
- For getting salary info
- For learning to solve problems
- For community
- And yes, for job hunting

The best time to start building your network is five years ago.

The second-best time is now.

Acknowledging privilege

Where we go wrong with networking

So why does it feel weird?

- Am I being deceptive?

So why does it feel weird?

- Am I being deceptive?
- Is it an even trade?

So why does it feel weird?

- Am I being deceptive?
- Is it an even trade?
- People are hard!

It's more like a web

Your network isn't just direct connections

- People you know

Your network isn't just direct connections

- People you know
- People they know
- People they work with
- People they've just heard of

The background features a dark blue gradient with several lighter blue triangles of varying sizes and orientations overlapping in the upper right corner.

You don't know where the next opportunity is going to come from

Change your mindset

Networks aren't (just) job-hunting tools

- Your network is a collection

Networks aren't (just) job-hunting tools

- Your network is a collection
- It's a collection of people

Networks aren't (just) job-hunting tools

- Your network is a collection
- It's a collection of people
- Joined together in one or more communities

Networks aren't (just) job-hunting tools

- Your network is a collection
- It's a collection of people
- Joined together in one or more communities
- You already have one, even if you don't know it

Networks are built on empathy

Building a network

How to people successfully

- Networking is getting to know people

How to people successfully

- Networking is getting to know people
- Specifically, knowing people as people

- Be willing to be a bit vulnerable
- Listen actively

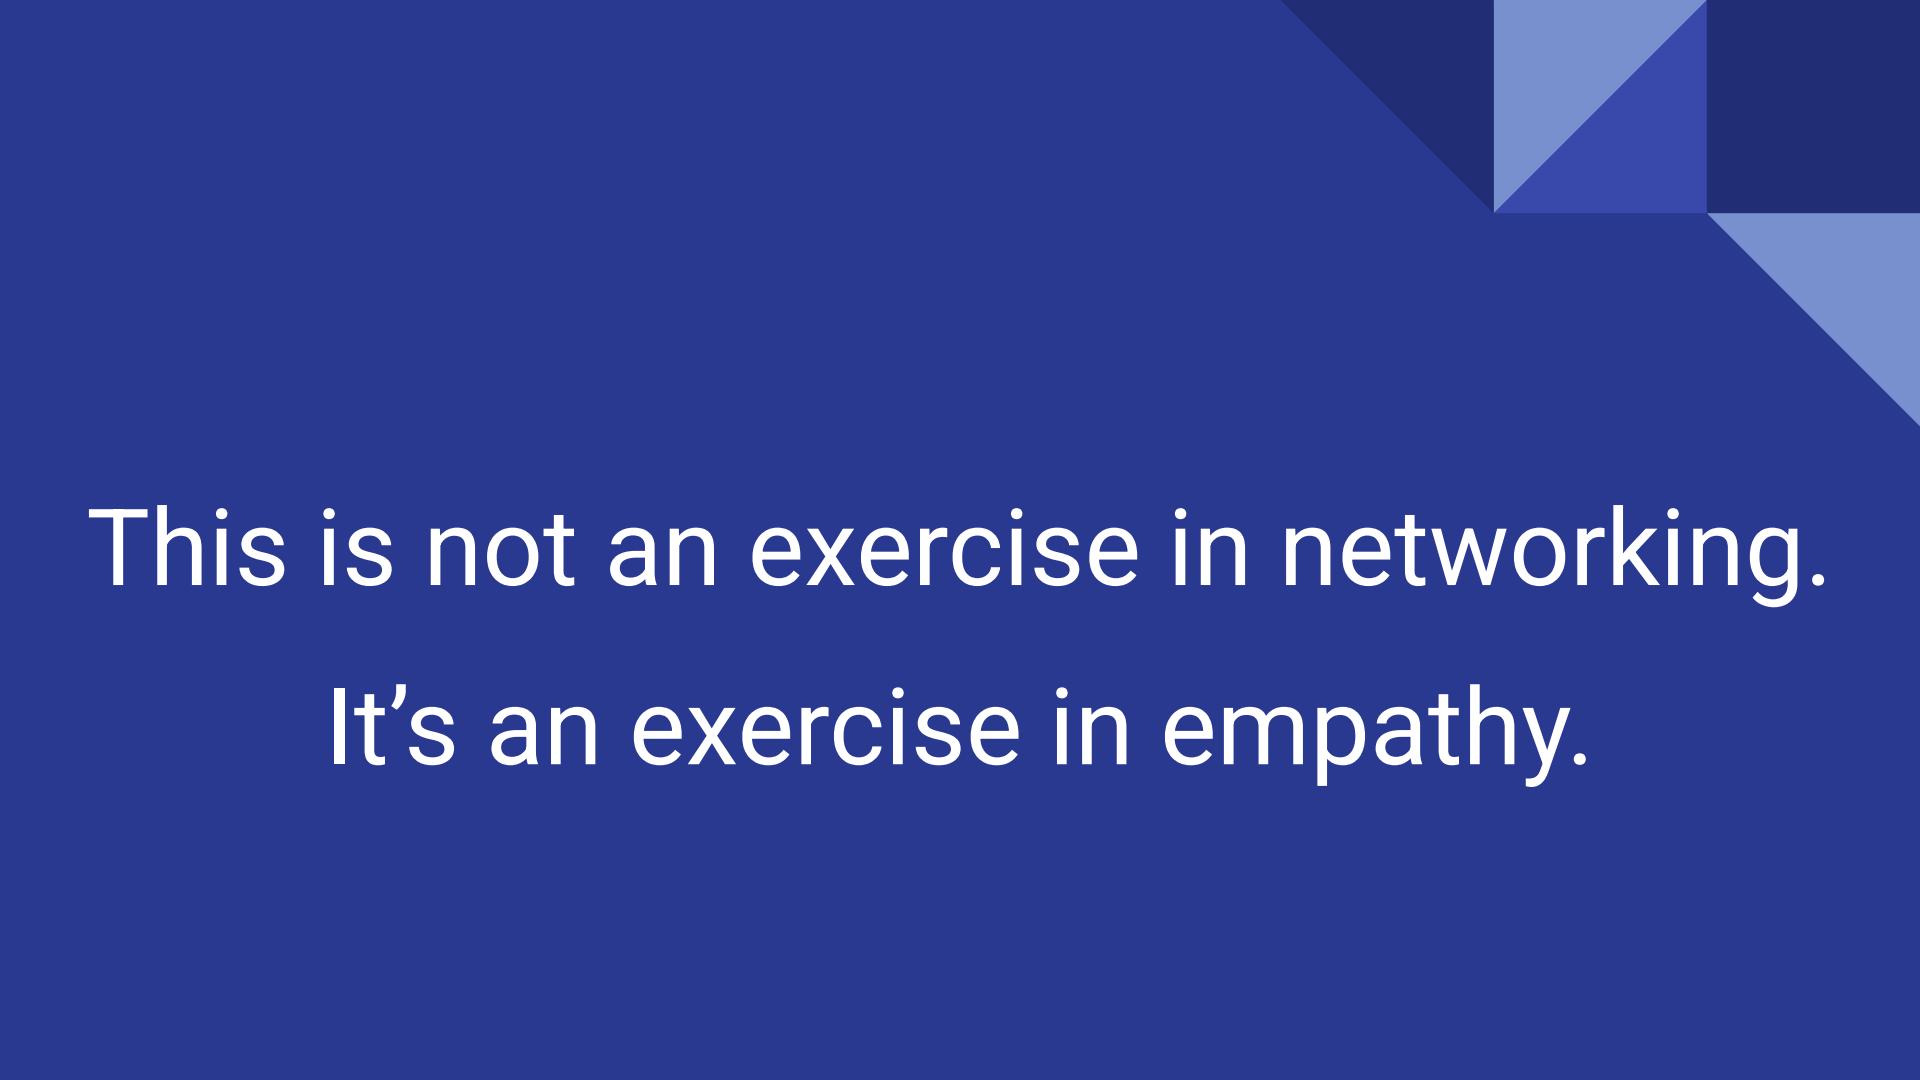

The background features a large, solid dark blue rectangle. In the upper right corner, there is an abstract geometric pattern composed of several triangles. These triangles are primarily in shades of blue, ranging from dark navy to light lavender. They are arranged in a way that creates a sense of depth and movement, resembling a stylized sunburst or a cluster of stars.

EXERCISE

1. Your Name
  2. Where you're from
  3. One weird interest
  4. Respond

This is not an exercise in networking.

This is not an exercise in networking.

It's an exercise in empathy.

Giving Back to Your Network

Listen first

- Don't just jump in with a suggestion

Listen first

- Don't just jump in with a suggestion
- Understand the needs you're addressing

Listen first

- Don't just jump in with a suggestion
- Understand the needs you're addressing
- Somebody else might be more appropriate

Share what you know

- When you reply, do so with empathy and intent

Share what you know

- When you reply, do so with empathy and intent
- Focus the reply on the person you're helping

Share what you know

- When you reply, do so with empathy and intent
- Focus the reply on the person you're helping
- Ask "Does this add to the discussion?"

Using your network

Be a participant

- Give others an opportunity to help

Be a participant

- Give others an opportunity to help
- Be willing to build community with empathy

Be a participant

- Give others an opportunity to help
- Be willing to build community with empathy
- Not every conversation has a purpose

When it's an emergency

- Be factual about what happened

When it's an emergency

- Be factual about what happened
- Be clear about what you need

When it's an emergency

- Be factual about what happened
- Be clear about what you need
- Be grateful for help, even if it's not helpful

Beyond the fire alarm

- Let people know how you're doing

Beyond the fire alarm

- Let people know how you're doing
- Express gratitude for the help again

Beyond the fire alarm

- Let people know how you're doing
- Express gratitude for the help again
- Pass along resources

Maintaining your network

Networks need maintenance

Don't wait for an emergency

- If your network has a persistent communication channel, participate

Don't wait for an emergency

- If your network has a persistent communication channel, participate
- Check in on people to keep things fresh

Don't wait for an emergency

- If your network has a persistent communication channel, participate
- Check in on people to keep things fresh
- Doesn't need a specific purpose

Wow, this is a lot of work

- People take effort

Wow, this is a lot of work

- People take effort
- Be mindful of your own resources

Wow, this is a lot of work

- People take effort
- Be mindful of your own resources
- You don't have to do everything

Taking your network online

Beyond face-to-face

- Online communities are bigger than ever
  - Socials: Mastodon, BlueSky, Threads, even LinkedIn
  - Real-time convos: Discord, Slack, IRC
  - Asynchronous: Yes, forums still exist
- Beware parasocial relationships

Anonymity requires care

- Easy to lose nuance online
- Exercise empathy

Maintenance online

- Online communities multiply rapidly
- Don't feel obligated to keep all of them
- Checking in is easier, but so is ghosting

Final Thoughts

- Networks are built on empathy
- You already have the start of a network
- Opportunities come from unexpected places
